Countries on the Human Rights Watch List:

Afghanistan: Persecution of women

Angola: Protesters are being detained or “disappeared”.

Azerbaijan: The government has cracked down on freedom of speech in the media.

Bangladesh: Bangladesh Rifles border guards who committed mutiny in 2009 have been abused, tortured and killed while in custody.

Bulgaria: A parade for gay pride was banned by the Lithuanian government, but was allowed to go on the next day. Marchers were subject to Molotov cocktails and stoning. Father Evgeni Yanakiev of the Bulgarian Orthodox Church, supported the stoning as a way to oppose the parade.

Congo: Bosco Ntaganda recruited and used child soldiers and has played a role in ethnic massacres, killings, rape, and torture. Election fraud, with dozens of people killed in pre-and post-election violence.

Ethiopia: 200,000 indigenous people are being forced from their lands to make way for sugar plantations and the construction of a dam. Genocidal massacres against the Anuak, Ogadeni, Oromo, and Omo tribes.

Iran: Political, religious, and ethnic conflicts. Widespread discrimination against religious and ethnic minorities, particularly the Baha’i.

Libya: Civilian casualties from air strikes. Militia rule.

Mali: Gold mining companies are ignoring dangers from mercury and are using child labor.

North Korea: Political mass killings.

Myanmar: Persecution of the Muslim ethnic minority, the Rohingya.

Peru: Prevention of people with disabilities from voting

Qatar: Exploitation and abuse of migrant workers (even to the extent of forced labor). There is an employment system in Qatar that traps workers in their jobs (essentially slavery).

Russia: St. Petersburg authorities denied permission to hold a peaceful gay pride march, adopting a law banning “propaganda of sodomy, lesbianism, bisexuality and transgenderness among minors”.

South Sudan: Unlawful detentions and abuse in prisons.
  Food emergency: 1/3 of people are facing endemic hunger and starvation.
  Ethnic tensions: massacres in Jonglei.
  Border disputes with Sudan.

Sudan: Darfur region genocide.
  Refugees are fleeing Sudan to South Sudan in order to escape airstrikes, but are facing starvation.

Syria: Genocide.
  27 torture centers have been identified throughout Syria. Former prisoners have identified the torture methods being used.
  War crimes during peace negotiations

United States: Immigrant workers are vulnerable to wage theft and sexual violence.
  Widespread Islamophobia leading to persecution and discrimination.
